UK Singles Chart

On 15 November 1952, the comparatively new popular music newspaper the New Musical Express became the first to print a chart of the best selling records in Britain. Sheet music charts had existed in Britain on and off since 1936, but it was not until after the end of the Second World War that the concept of charts began to be considered important within the British music industry. By the early 50s it was not so much the song as a particular recording of the song that was the trigger for bringing customers into the shops, so it was inevitable that a record chart should be created.

31	NE	▶	GOT A MATCH Russ Conway

The NME chart, although the most complete and the most accurate at the time, was still prone to little mistakes. On 6 September they reported that "Inadvertently, the Coasters' Yakety Yak was omitted from last week's chart; the position was No.17". This omission was particularly lucky for Russ Conway. His record Got A Match was placed at number 30 for that miscalculated week only, and if the Coasters' record had not been missed out, it would never have made the Top 30 at all. The correct chart is used here but include Russ Conway at 31, because it was printed. Note that the various chart books list Got A Match as #30, but the correct peak position is number 31.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Leonidas Fragias is the proud owner of one of the largest record collections which includes nearly every charted hit in Europe and America from the early 1900s to 2018.

Whether it's a John Sousa march, a bossa nova album from Astrud Gilberto, an EDM track from Avicii, a hard rock record from Poison, a hip hop single from N.W.A. or a pop CD from Whitney Houston, Leon's rich music collection occupies an entire room in his house.

Leonidas also has a rich DVD / blu-ray / video collection, because he's a big fan of movies and he's the author of the best-selling "Box Office" books. He also collects many books and comics (especially those from the late 1950s to the early 1990s).

Born in Athens, Greece, Leonidas bought his first album in 1982 (it was the "Rocky III" soundtrack...not the greatest choice, but he was only 10 years old at the time). The first artist album he ever purchased was the eponymous 1983 album by Nena. Leonidas had a huge teenage crush on the famous German singer back then.

When he was a teenager back in the 1980s he used to spend his allowance on records (compilation albums like the British version of "Now That's What I Call Music", LP's, singles, and VHS tapes) and magazines like Billboard and Rolling Stone among others.

He's the creator of many popular sites on the internet about music, movies and comics.
